KEEPING YOU “IN THE KNOW”

- Visitation: Visitation is still a thing. We have been asked by the Walla Walla County Department of Health to caution you against visitation. When you come and ring the doorbell, we will share with you that we are discouraging visitation, but if you decide you'd like to visit anyway our staff will open the door for you. Please pay attention to your physical symptoms when deciding whether or not to visit. Please refrain from visiting if you have any potential covid symptoms.
- Screening: Our new kiosks are working well. Give them a try the next time you come to visit. On your first visit you will answer some registration questions. After that on future visits, the screening process is entirely hands free. I did it this morning holding my lunch, purse, a water bottle and a cup of coffee (yep, I'm a pack rat). Not once did I have to touch anything, I was able to not my head for all the answers, pick up my screening picture and go through the door. Try them out, it's kind of fun!
- Mask Mandates: Health care was the first area masks were implemented at the start of the pandemic. We will be the last to roll them back as mandates begin to be lifted. Please remember that masks are required throughout your entire visit, in the halls and when visiting in your loved one's room. Thank you!

WE'VE BEEN BUSY!

CLOSING PONDERANCE . . .

Valentines' day is upon us. I will be honest, it's not my favorite holiday. Maybe it's because I don't need a day set aside to celebrate love. It's my whole world. I sat with a family member today who's loved one is going through their final days on this earth. They were incredibly kind and gracious, complimenting our facility and staff for all the good care. But something I'm not sure I've ever gotten any family member in all my years to understand, we give this care because we genuinely love your Mom, Dad, Auntie, Grandpa, (insert your loved one's name here). They become a part of our family to. We don't give this care because it's our job, we do it because we love them. That's real love. Like Pooh bear says, it isn't something you write on a card, it's something you feel. It's being safe with someone, it's knowing that you can be real, it's being able to be vulnerable and still be supported, it's being weak and needing someone to lift you up. Not one person here would tell you they went into this career field for the money. We all made this choice because we love people. And your people, well, they are our people to. And that is why we love them. Happy Valentine's Day Kari ♥
